SOMETHING BETTER
Why Millions of People Are Changing What They Eat
A National Trend

“The drop in chicken [consumption has been] dramatic over the last five years or so; pork also has been slipping... we’re eating less meat because we want to eat less meat.”

More and more people are deciding to replace chicken and other meat with tasty meat-free meals. Average meat consumption in the U.S. has dropped 10 percent in the past few years. And a whopping 15 million Americans have stopped eating meat entirely.

You want to live a long and healthy life. Once you learn all the health benefits of cutting meat out of your diet, you can decide what you really want to put on your plate. More and more people are learning that they can live a healthier, happier life — and spare dozens of animals each year — by replacing meat with something better.

“Carrie Underwood is the latest big name to ditch animal products... No beef, no chicken, no fish... She says she not only loves [meat-free] food, but it’s the healthiest way to live.”

AOL Entertainment

“[]] stopped eating all meat a few years ago. I would feel guilty that what was on my plate was walking around yesterday. Either I could live with that or stop eating meat. I chose the latter, and I’m happier for it.”

Replacing meat with something better doesn’t mean changing what you believe. It just means putting your beliefs into action – for a better you and a better world.

Meats like chicken and fish are linked to many health problems. Chicken and eggs are two of the biggest sources of saturated fat intake. That’s one reason they are linked to higher death rates from breast cancer. Chicken and fish also have high levels of cancer-causing chemicals such as dioxin, arsenic, and mercury.

“I realized how absurd the notion of ‘needing’ meat in the diet was. From that point on, I never looked back...View it as a positive change and look forward to all of the new amazing, healthy and delicious foods you can eat.”

-MAC DANZIG, Ultimate Fighting champion

ACCORDING TO THE ACADEMY OF NUTRITION AND DIETETICS, PEOPLE WHO REPLACE MEAT WITH SOMETHING BETTER HAVE:

• lower body weight
• less heart disease
• less cancer
• lower cholesterol
• lower blood pressure
• lower rates of type 2 diabetes
Obesity is a major problem in the U.S. It’s linked to some of the leading causes of death, including diabetes, heart disease, and stroke.

People who cut out chicken and other meat are thinner and healthier. The National Institutes of Health found they weigh 5 to 30 pounds less on average. They also have much lower rates of type two diabetes and heart disease.

Want to shed a few pounds and have more energy in your daily life? Replacing chicken and other meat with something better can help you get there.

“The bad stuff that we eat, it goes into your body and it stays there...I’ve just decided not to eat meat or dairy products and it feels wonderful... You’ll improve your performance.”

Arian Foster, All-Pro running back, Houston Texans
“Do you know what’s in your chicken? A multitude of chemicals and drugs...including monosodium glutamate, a cleaning agent, multiple antibiotics, and a form of arsenic.”

-The Dr Oz Show (April 12, 2012)

To keep them alive in their filthy sheds, farm animals are fed large amounts of antibiotics. They are also fed a type of arsenic (a cancer-causing chemical) and other additives. The chemicals stay in the meat even after it’s been processed. Researchers worry about the long-term effects this has on people’s health.

A 2012 New York Times article showed half of all chicken products have feces on them. The growth hormones fed to many farm animals are believed to cause an increase in breast and prostate cancer in human beings.
Are You Against This Cruelty?

“They lie covered in their own urine and excrement, with broken legs from trying to escape or just to turn, covered with festering sores, tumors, ulcers, lesions.”

MATTHEW SCULLY, Speechwriter for President George W. Bush

Pigs are kept indoors for their entire lives on concrete floors with no bedding. Female pigs are locked in cages so small they can’t even turn around for months at a time. Some will repeatedly bite their cage bars; others become depressed and lie on the ground without moving.

Chickens are bred to grow so fat so quickly that their legs can’t even support their weight. By the time they are one month old, a third of them are in constant pain and have trouble walking. As a result, they spend nearly all of their time lying in the feces that coat the shed floor. Many are packed in cages so small they can’t turn around.
Making The Switch

Taking chicken and other meat off your plate is one of the best things you can do for animals and your health.

But it’s important to eat right. Filling up on soda and French fries is easy, but it’s not healthy. Whatever your reasons for ditching meat, it’s important to make the switch in a healthy way. Here are two simple recommendations when cutting out (or cutting back on) meat.

1. MAKE SURE TO EAT THE RIGHT AMOUNT OF CALORIES EACH DAY to get the protein your body needs. Beans, nuts, plant-based meats, tofu, whole grains, and dairy-free protein shakes are great sources of protein.

2. IRON IS IMPORTANT. Whole grains like oatmeal and wheat, beans, and dark leafy greens are filled with iron. People with low iron levels should discuss iron supplements with their doctor.
Meat-Free Meals: Delicious and Convenient

Replacing meat with something better can be fun and delicious. You can keep many of the foods and flavors you already love – and try a few new ones.

You already eat lots of meat-free food. So keep filling your plate with the foods you know and love! Good, simple breakfast choices include cereal, bagels, granola, toast, muffins, waffles, and fresh fruit.

Familiar lunch and dinner options include a veggie sub with chips, pasta with tangy marinara sauce, bean burritos packed with guacamole and salsa, stir-fried vegetables and tofu over rice, creamy mashed potatoes, and hearty lentil soup.

Next, replace animal meat with plant-based meats. There are so many mouth-watering options now that you’ll wish you had tried them before! They are also very convenient – just warm and serve in minutes. Satisfy your craving with protein-packed meat-free sausages, burgers, chicken nuggets, meatballs, lunch meats, hot dogs, ribs, chicken patties, ground beef, and more.
